Feeling Stuck with a Home You Need to Sell Fast?

If you're in Utah and dealing with a home that just won't sell—or worse, one that needs repairs you can't afford—you're not alone. Many homeowners find themselves overwhelmed when they need to sell fast due to job relocation, divorce, inherited property, or unexpected life changes.

In this post, we'll break down the real quickest ways to sell a house, why some options are slower than they seem, and how to get a fair cash offer in just days—no repairs or realtors required.

What We'll Cover

1. Why Speed Matters When Selling a House
2. Top 3 Fastest Ways to Sell a Home \(Ranked\)
3. Why Selling "As-Is" Could Be Your Best Option

5. Real Stories: How We Helped Utah Homeowners Sell in Days

Why Speed Matters When Selling a House

Sometimes, waiting months for the perfect buyer just isn't an option.

You might be facing:

1. Job relocation with a fast move-out date
2. Inherited a property you can't keep or afford
3. Divorce or major life changes
4. Behind on payments or facing foreclosure
5. A house with repairs you can't fix or finance

For many, the true cost of waiting includes not just money—but stress, uncertainty, and mounting problems.

Top 3 Fastest Ways to Sell a Home (Ranked)

Here's a breakdown of the most common methods homeowners try—ranked by actual speed:

1. Sell to a Cash Buyer (Fastest)

1. Close in 5–7 days
2. No inspections, repairs, or showings
3. Immediate offer after a short walk-through

2. Sell to an iBuyer (e.g., Opendoor, Zillow)

1. Close in 7–21 days
2. May require minor repairs or fees
3. Limited availability in some areas

3. List with a Real Estate Agent

1. Takes 30–90+ days
2. Requires cleaning, staging, and multiple showings
3. Realtor fees (up to 6%) deducted from your final sale

Selling “as-is” means you skip:

1. Costly repairs
2. Cleaning and junk removal
3. Endless walk-throughs

At True American Homes, we buy properties regardless of condition—damaged, dated, or even condemned.

You’ll benefit from:

1. A fair, no-obligation cash offer
2. No out-of-pocket expenses
3. A clear process with zero hidden fees

And yes, we've bought homes that had:

1. Unpermitted work
2. Fire or water damage
3. HOA violations or liens
